“Live for the moment, cherish every day”

I have never, ever, ever met such a brave, courageous, loving and loyal person.

Cheryl was diagnosed with Breast Cancer in 2004. After several operations and chemotherapy Cheryl was given an “all clear”. Unfortunately some cancer cells had “got out” and lay dormant in other parts of her body. In late 2007 after experiencing a series of bad headaches, Cheryl was diagnosed with Metastatic Breast Cancer. 8 tumours were growing in her brain.

Even in light of a poor prognosis, Cheryl lived her life to the fullest but spent the last few months quietly saying goodbye to her many friends, and her family.

After a family weekend “holiday” Cheryl’s condition deteriorated rapidly and she passed away peacefully on the evening of 18th February 2008.

At her funeral, 47 pink balloons were released to say goodbye to Cheryl and to mark her courage in her fight to the end against all the odds.

Cheryl you left too soon but such a beautiful person did not deserve to suffer any more.

We miss you terribly.
